

In 1967, Glyn and Clare inherited the family home and post office at Hill Head House, Washford. Already leading busy lives as teachers, they weren't prepared for the added responsibility and pressures which came from leading a village business whilst bringing up a young family.

A Village Inheritance shares their story of running the business, highlighting their excitement, optimism and the difficulties they faced.

Originally written in 1974, this book was updated and republished in 2018.
